Generals Under 45? Air Force Has 64, Army 24, Marine Corps 2, Navy None

THE Army and Air Force can count on close to 1000 man years of service from general officers now on active duty who are 45 years of age or younger.

The Air Force names 64 generals with birthdays in 1912 or later—nine of them major generals.

The Army reports 24 generals who are 45 or younger, including two major generals—one of them a former aide to General Eisenhower.

The Marine Corps lists two officers in this category, including Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson's Military Assistant, recently given a rare "spot promotion."

The Navy, which won wide acclaim for an accent on youth when 52 year old Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, USN, was made Chief of Naval Operations in 1955, says it does not have a single admiral 45 or younger. Its youngest flag officer will be 47 next month.

Youngest two-star officer in the entire Service is Maj. Gen. William H. Blanchard, USAF, former Deputy Director of Operations for the Strategic Air Command at Offutt AFB, Nebr., who has been named to Command the 7th Air Division of SAC in England.

General Blanchard, who was 41 on 6 February, was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1938. He made brigadier general 14 years later and major general in 1957. He accompanied General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, Chief of Staff, on the celebrated trip to Moscow last year.

General Blanchard is but one of at least 20 SAC generals who were born in 1912 or later.

A study of Army and Air Force general officer ranks shows a number of

Navy And Marine Corps Ask "Force Out" For About 2,000 Regular Senior Officers

Two thousand senior officers of the Regular Navy and Marine Corps will be forced out of uniform during the next five years—possibly with no loss in retired pay—under the terms of legislation now at the Bureau of the Budget.

The proposal, first outlined in THE JOURNAL on 9 March, is now being explained to the Congress. It has won the approval of Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, and is pending action at the Bureau of the Budget.

Regular Navy commanders and Regular Marine Corps lieutenant colonels and colonels would be involuntarily retired under the plan after 20 years of service when twice passed over.

Some Regular Navy captains would be involuntarily retired after five years in grade if not selected for continued duty by "continuation boards."

At present, commanders and lieutenant colonels are permitted to remain on active duty until they complete 26 years' service. Colonels and Navy captains are permitted to remain until they have completed 30 years' service.

The Navy said the new proposal—designed to smooth out the promotion "hump" in the two Services—will permit the forced retirement of about 1500 officers during the next five years. The

Fiscal Field Marshals Threaten Cordiner Bill

Delaying tactics by Budget Bureau "Fiscal Field Marshals" are threatening to destroy chances for enactment this year of a military pay bill proposed by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and approved in principle by President Eisenhower.

There are rumblings from Capitol Hill in the face of this situation that some Democratic legislators will wrest the initiative from the administration following the end of the Easter recess on 29 April.

It is known that Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and Senator Stuart Symington (D-Mo), a committee member, have expressed interest in the savings that are promised by the Cordiner Committee if their pay proposals are adopted.

Senator Symington, it is recalled, led the Air Power inquiry last year. This investigation was highlighted by assertions from top military commanders, notably General Curtis E. LeMay, Commander in Chief of SAC, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff-Designate, that large sums of money could be saved and combat effectiveness greatly improved by inauguration of a new pay system.

Such a system was proposed by the Cordiner committee and endorsed officially by Secretary Wilson in a communication to the Budget Bureau. Mr. Wilson also promised Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee, that a pay measure would

ROK Army, With 20 Combat-Ready Divisions and 10 In Reserve, Is Now Second Largest In Free World, KMAC Chief Reports

By MAJ. GEN. CARL F. FRITZSCHE, USA Chief, U. S. Army Advisory Group, Korea

AT the end of the world's longest supply line, a handful of U. S. Army officers and enlisted men are advising the second largest army in the free world and the only army in the free world deployed against an armed enemy.

These men, together with a WAC officer and an Army Nurse, comprise the U. S. Army Advisory Group, Korea (KMAC).

KMAC has the three general missions of advising the ROK Army (ROKA) on organizational, training, logistical and operational matters; of providing liaison between the Chief of Staff, ROKA, and the Commanding General, Eighth U. S. Army; and of supervising the receipt, storage, distribution and end use of Mutual Defense Assistance supplies and equipments.

U.S. Army assistance in the development of a defense force in South Korea began shortly after the first American personnel arrived in Korea at the close of World War II. Late in 1945, a one-month course for Korean police with U.S. Army instructors was established in the old Japanese Academy buildings in Seoul. This initial effort to train Koreans in internal police functions was the early predecessor of the present Advisory Group.

After the Republic of Korea government was established in 1948, American units were gradually withdrawn. A small group of officers and enlisted men remained in Korea, however, to form a Provisional Military Assistance Group. This group functioned until 1 July 1949, when the U.S. Military Advisory Group to the Republic of Korea (KMAC) was activated.

In 1950, the North Korean Communists,

Will Settle Exchange Additions In May

Recommended changes in the type and quality of items Service families can buy in their exchanges are expected to be placed before the full House Armed Services Committee early in May.

Representatives of the Pentagon and of national retail associations have agreed to boost price limitations on 24 items now sold in the exchanges (THE JOURNAL, 13 April). They also have agreed to the addition of three new items: maternity dresses, electric blankets and portable typewriters.

Disputed additions to the exchange stocks include baby furniture, children's clothing in sizes 7 through 12, tires and batteries and men's sport coats.

The Philbin Subcommittee, which has been studying the proposed expansion, will go into executive session soon after the Easter recess of Congress to take a final look at Service arguments favoring the changes and at the arguments of retailers who are opposed to the expansion. The Subcommittee then will draft a report to the full Committee.

It is expected that little objection will be made to the list of items on which the Services and the retailers have reached agreement. Baby furniture, children's clothing and tires and batteries also may win support both from the subcommittee and the full committee. Men's sport coats appear to be the one item of continuing controversy.

However, since the Pentagon withdrew some of its proposals, and since the list agreed to by the retailers includes only three new items, there is a strong possibility that the full committee will go along with the only changes which the Services have recommended in eight years.

VA Warns In-Service Premium Waivers After 1 May Can Peril Survivor Benefits

GI life insurance policyholders whose contracts are under in-service premium waiver should consider cancelling the waivers and resuming premium payments before 1 May 1957, the Veterans Administration advises.

On and after that date, should a policyholder die while on active duty or of a service-connected cause with the waiver still in effect, his survivors will not be entitled to the higher death compensation rates provided by the new Survivor Benefits Act, VA said.

The 1 May date is not a deadline for cancelling in-service waivers, VA emphasized, since this may be done at any time while the policyholder is in service or for 120 days thereafter.

However, VA added, unless and until such cancellation is made, the new compensation rates will not be payable to survivors in case of the policyholder's in-service or service-connected death on or after 1 May. The restriction does not apply if the death occurs before that date.

A 1951 law permitted GI insurance pol-

General Officers Asked For Army MSC

Representative Carl T. Durham (D-NC) has introduced legislation to create general officer grades for the Army Medical Service Corps.

Congressman Durham, a ranking member of the House Armed Services Committee, noted that the MSC "is the only male corps which has no general officers, and which does not and never has had the opportunity of competing for these higher positions."

He cited statistics which show that the Army Medical Corps, with an officer strength of 4300, has 17 general officers; the Dental Corps, with an officer strength of 2600, has three general officers, and the Veterinary Corps, with 475 officers, has one general.

The Medical Service Corps, with an officer strength of 4500, has none, he said.

"I hold that any corps of this size, which is composed of so many highly regarded professional personnel, and which has distinguished itself so admirably in combat, richly deserves the equality of opportunity afforded other male corps of the Army," he told the House.

The Congressman's proposal (HR 6801) has been referred to the Armed Services Committee for action. Here are excerpts of Mr. Durham's remarks on the subject:

"The Medical Service Corps has increased tremendously in size, responsibilities, and areas of utilization in the past 10 years. It is composed of individuals who are dedicated to the highest principles of the Army Medical Service, the United States Army, and this great Nation of ours. The Medical Service Corps officer, in addition to being professionally qualified in his field, must be adept in the application and techniques of the combat arms as well. These officers served with honor during the Korean conflict when each infantry division was authorized 38 Medical Service Corps officers. As a matter of fact, next to the infantry and artillery, they outnumbered all other frontline corps, and their assignments ranged from that of the assistant battalion surgeon, who provided frontline emergency medical care, to that of the helicopter pilot, who flew the wounded back to the hospitals.

"The Medical Service Corps consists of specialists in over 50 scientific, technical, and administrative specialties, including pharmacists, optometrists, sanitary engineers, podiatrists, clinical psychologists, bacteriologists, radiological laboratory officers, biochemists, physiologists, entomologists, social workers, immunologists, parasitologists, and in the broader fields, administrators, comptrollers, and executives trained in management, logistics, manpower, teaching, intelligence, staff and command, training, research and development, operations and planning, programming, financial management, industrial funding, and the biological and physical sciences. These officers serve also as consultants to physicians.

"It is also interesting to note that almost 30 percent of all the Ph. D.'s in the Army are members of the Medical Service Corps.

"In any major conflict in the future, the services of physicians will be in an acutely short supply. The existence of the Medical Service Corps negates the universal complaint of our World War II Reserve physicians, who charged that their professional services were needlessly expended in non-professional duties. The corps distinguished itself in Korea as a member of that great Army medical team, which assured our Army of the lowest sickness and disease rate, and the best chance of survival after being wounded, of any army in history. The Medical Service Corps has now reached full maturity, and new opportunities have been opened up in the whole area of service support in such new fields as medical intelligence, military missions, and particularly in the logistics officer program. In mobilization these officers would be required to serve in 1 or 2 grades higher than now serving, and the responsibilities would be even greater than in World War II. However, in this era of unprecedented opportunities for college graduates in civilian pursuits, a military career is not going to be attractive to the highest type of personnel desired, when it is realized that in the Medical Service Corps our present laws preclude equality of opportunity to aspire to the higher ranks available in the military service. At the present time, the Medical Service Corps is the only male corps which has no general officers, and which does not and never has had the opportunity of competing for these higher positions in the Military Establishment. Other corps of the Army, much smaller in size than the Medical Service Corps, have several general officers. Equality of opportunity should not be denied to the Medical Service Corps, and if some of the gross inequities cannot be rectified under present legislation, I propose that legislation

READY FOR REDSTONE

The Pentagon announced 17 April that the Army's Redstone missile, for which the Chrysler Corp. is the prime contractor, will soon be utilized by field artillery missile battalions.

Developed by Army Ordnance at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., the Redstone project was started in 1951 with the aid of some developments from other projects, such as modification of the rocket motor produced by North American Aviation.

The Redstone was described in the official statement as "a highly accurate, liquid propelled, surface-to-surface missile capable of bringing tremendous firepower against targets far beyond the range of conventional artillery."

be enacted that would correct these injustices. To illustrate the inequality that exists I should like to enter on the record a listing of all the mail corps of the Army establishment with their approximate present strength of officers, and the number of general officers in each of the Corps.

Corps	Approximate strength	Number of general officers
Armor	6,000	61
Artillery	20,200	121
Infantry	24,000	154
Adjutant General	5,300	6
Chemical	1,500	4
Chaplain	1,100	2
Engineer	9,400	29
Military Police	2,400	4
Finance	1,500	4
Judge Advocate General	1,100	3
Medical Service:
Dental Corps	2,600	3
Medical Corps	4,300	17
Medical Services Corps	4,500	None
Veterinary Corps	475	1
Ordnance	7,100	23
Quartermaster	6,300	19
Signal	7,400	19
Transportation	6,400	14

"The above data speak for themselves. I hold that any Corps of this size, which is composed of so many highly regarded professional personnel, and which has distinguished itself so admirably in combat, richly deserves the equality of opportunity afforded other male corps of the Army."

BoB Experts Hold Back Cordiner Bill

be sent to Congress.

Mr. Wilson advised Chairman Vinson that he was taking action even though the official Cordiner Committee report has yet to be completed.

Secretary Wilson sent a pay bill, actually a watered-down version of the Cordiner plan, to the Budget Bureau about a month ago.

At the Budget Bureau Mr. Wilson's bill has been under attack by Budget technicians. As reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, Budget Bureau people have called upon Pentagon experts for more information. These conferences which continued this week, give some slim hope of Budget Bureau clearance in time for quick consideration of a pay bill at the Capitol.

Failing such BoB action, Service families can only hope that either the House or Senate Armed Services Committee leadership will demand to be told the details of the plan developed under direction of Chairman R. J. Cordiner, president of the General Electric Co.

Secretary Wilson has stated publicly that he supports the Cordiner pay philosophy. Whether Secretary Wilson will become impatient over the Budget Bureau delay and again take his case to the White House—he long ago won preliminary Presidential approval for a new pay system—remains to be seen.

Those who are close to Mr. Wilson say that he is not accustomed to accept without a strong fight the rejection of legislative proposals in which he believes and which he has discussed favorably with the President.

Gen. Luehmann Will Be ISO Chief; Gen. Kinney Gets Surprise From Sec'y

SECRETARY of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles has tapped Brig. Gen. Arno Luehmann, USAF, to succeed Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Kinney, USAF, as Director of Information Services.

General Luehmann, who has been in charge of Air Force recruiting activities, reports to the Pentagon next month. He is an experienced ISO officer, is well known by representatives of all news media.

General Kinney goes to command a training wing at Chanute AFB, Ill., after service in Washington with the National Security Council, as Executive Assistant to Secretary Quarles and as Director of Information Services since last August.

Secretary Quarles took special steps to honor General Kinney's brilliant service in Washington with a ceremony on 12 April.

The Secretary summoned top Air Force civilians and officers to his office just before noon. He also invited members of the Pentagon press, longtime friends of General Kinney.

There were two other special guests—Mrs. Kinney and their daughter.

Then the Secretary buzzed for the general. As the ISO Director entered the room, it was obvious that he had been "scooped."

Said Secretary Quarles: "I guess we surprised you, Jack. Congratulations." Then, he presented General Kinney with the Legion of Merit for his work as Executive Assistant to the Secretary in providing "valuable advice and assistance on the resolution of many complex and important matters requiring Secretarial decision. These decisions," said the citation, "included matters affecting national policy, strategic concepts, size and composition of the Air Force, and related matters of equal importance."

The citation also praised General Kinney's service as ISO Director for "progressive and constructive changes in the information program which have done much to improve national understanding and support of Air Force objectives."

Reserves To Get Credits For Aero Med Meeting

Reserve Medical Corps officers who attend the forthcoming 28th annual meeting of the Aero Medical Association in Denver can earn retirement points.

This authorization covers eligible physicians who are Medical Corps officers of the Army, Navy or Air Force reserves on inactive duty. The meeting is scheduled for 6-8 May.

A symposium on space travel will be presented under the chairmanship of Col. Paul A. Campbell, USAF (MC), Air Force Office of Scientific Research, Washington, D. C. Panel discussions will include "Medical Problems of the Jet and Turbo-Jet Age" and "The Forthcoming Air Transport."

Lawyers' Pay Raise Said "Long Overdue"

Representative Abraham J. Multer (D-NY) is taking steps to win new support for his proposal to increase the pay of military lawyers.

He has inserted in the Congressional Record a chart (obtained from the American Bar Association) which compares the pay and allowances of Service lawyers with that of veterinarians, doctors and dentists.

This chart, he said, shows "why it is impossible to retain such officers in the Armed Forces."

Congressman Multer told the House that a pay raise for lawyers serving in the Armed Forces "is long overdue." He said there is a high turnover in the Judge Advocate's branch which "is not only uneconomical but results in inexperienced lawyers handling cases of great import."

The ABA chart, according to Joseph D. Stecher, Secretary of the Association, was obtained by the ABA "on an unofficial basis." It shows the current pay and allowances for legal and medical personnel of the Armed Forces as follows:

USN And USMC Would Force Out 2,000

From first page—

Marine Corps will drop about 500 during the same period.

VAdm. James L. Holloway, jr., Deputy CNO for Personnel, told the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee that the plan is essential "to prevent catastrophic attrition within the WW II year groups."

The Subcommittee initiated hearings on the subject on 11 April, although legislation has not yet been sent to Congress.

Admiral Holloway testified that the Navy will have 1780 vacancies in the grade of commander during the next five years, and, during the same period, 5500 lieutenant commanders "must be placed in a promotion zone for consideration."

He said, if the present "hump" problem is permitted to continue, 68 per cent of the 5500 lieutenant commanders will have to be attrited in order to insure them "a timely chance for promotion."

Navy studies of the "hump" problem clearly indicate that authority is needed to "selectively eliminate" some of the more senior Regular officers, Admiral Holloway said.

He told the Subcommittee that selective disposition of the least promising commanders—those who have twice failed of selection—appears essential, and parallel action must be taken among the more senior captains (those with at least five years' service in grade) to "give optimum help to the hump year groups at a minimum cost in officer years of productive service."

The proposed legislation, he said, will permit the Navy to boost its forced attrition rate to 35 per cent, or possibly 40 per cent.

Admiral Holloway said he feels the Congress will want to consider the possibility of giving officers full retirement credit for pay purposes for the 26 and 30-year periods of service now prescribed by law, even though they are not permitted to complete such service.

This would mean a difference of about $45.50 per month in the retired pay of commanders and lieutenant colonels forced out after 20, and a difference of about $25 in the retired pay of colonels and Navy captains forced out before completion of 30 years' service.

TELLS MARINE PLANS

Lt. Col. Finley T. Clarke, USMC, Head of the Personnel, Plans and Policy

Branch at Marine Corps Headquarters, told the Subcommittee that the Marine "hump" is confined to the year groups 1942, 1943 and 1944.

He said the Marine Corps "hump" is a bit more senior in grade than the Navy's. Nearly half of the hump has moved into the grade of lieutenant colonel and the leading element of the hump is expected to be in the promotion zone for colonel by 1959, he said.

Colonel Clarke noted that if all officers in the hump are allowed to remain on board for a total of 30 years' commissioned service, the entire grade of colonel and much of the grade of lieutenant colonel will consist entirely of officers in the hump. He said in the early 1970's those colonels who retire will have been serving in that grade for only one year.

"This would produce a total lack of stability in the grade of colonel, and in the Marine Corps command structure," he said, "and would leave the Marine Corps for several years with no adequate source from which to select brigadier generals."

The solution, he told the Subcommittee, is to require the retirement of officers who have more than 20 years' service and who twice fail of selection.

Colonel Clarke gave these details about attrition under the proposed plan:

Forced attrition will be somewhat higher than was normally contemplated under the Officer Personnel Act but not "unreasonable in any grade." Attrition to colonel will rise from 30 per cent to 40 per cent by fiscal 1960 and remain at this level until about 1969 when it will decline gradually to a normal 25 per cent.

Attrition to lieutenant colonel can be maintained at 30 per cent until about 1968, and then will decline to 20 per cent. Attrition to major, which will affect only those officers behind the hump, need not exceed 20 per cent at any time.

All of this can be accomplished, Colonel Clarke said, without exceeding present grade distribution limitations, and adhering to the normal promotion flow provisions of law so that the average age of captains in the promotion zone for major does not rise above 34 years; the average age of majors in the promotion zone for lieutenant colonel does not rise above 40; and the average age of lieutenant colonels in the promotion zone for colonel does not rise above 47.

Logistics Careers Set For Reserves

AR 140-195 outlines a Logistics Career Program for Army Reserve officers not on extended active duty. The new program will be under the supervision of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics. It complements the existing Logistics Officer program for active Army officers.

It is estimated 2500 USAR officers will be selected and trained to fill the need for logistics officers to man mobilization designee positions or as members of Ready Reserve Troop Basis units.

The objective of the program is to develop a sufficient number of professionally equipped and capable USAF officers, not on extended Active duty, for assignment to key logistics mobilization designee positions, Ready Reserve Troops Basis Unit positions and other mobilization designee positions of high responsibility outside the Logistics area requiring logistics experience and background.

Prerequisites for participation in the program include: in the grade of captain or higher and have completed eight years of promotion service; performed in an outstanding manner in at least one assignment (active or inactive duty or a combination thereof) in the logistics area for a period of more than two years, or attained a civilian position of responsibility in a logistics or related area; must state willingness to participate voluntarily in the program.

Maj. Anderson 10th Div. PIO

Maj. Jack W. Anderson, USA, is the new 10th Infantry Division Public Information Officer at Wuerzburg, Germany. He replaces Maj. Donald E. Zieg, USA, who has been reassigned as Seventh Army Troop Information officer in Stuttgart.

Branch Shortages Told

Qualified Army officers are encouraged to apply for transfer to branches in which there is an understrength.

Details of the shortages are contained in Army Circular 614-1. The branches and grades in which significant shortages exist are:

Adjutant General's Corps: First lieutenant. Not over 28 years of age, a combat arms background with a minimum of two years' service in a regimental or lower level unit, combined with an educational background and military experience indicative of potential development as an AG officer.

Artillery: Major, captain and first lieutenant. Acceptable record and sufficient mathematical background to pass Artillery courses.

Corps of Engineers: Lieutenant colonel and captain with a BS degree or its equivalent, at least two years of duty with a combat arm, and physically qualified for combat duty.

Ordnance Corps: Colonel, lieutenant colonel, major, captain and first lieutenant with minimum qualifications of BS or AB degree or its equivalent.

Army Air Defense Command

The five regional commands of the Army Air Defense Command have been given new names to conform with the new name for the overall command which, until 21 March, was known as the Army Antiaircraft Command.

The five major field commands of ARADCOM will be known as 1st Region, AADC, Ft. Totten, N. Y.; 2d Region, AADC, Ft. Meade, Md.; 4th Region, AADC, Grandview AFB, Mo.; 5th Region, AADC, Ft. Sheridan, Ill.; and 6th Region, AADC, Ft. Baker, Calif.

The redesignation of the nationwide command was ordered by the Department of Army to give it a name more descriptive of the command's mission. The Army Air Defense Command provides all of the Army forces allocated to the air defense system which guards the continental United States. These defenses include the NIKE guided missiles.

Finance School Lacks

Enlisted Instructors

A critical shortage of qualified enlisted instructors exists at the Finance School, U. S. Army, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Col. W. E. Sievers, USA, Commandant, said the shortage "could become crucial due to normal attrition and overseas transfers."

In an effort to alleviate this condition, the Office of the Chief of Finance, Washington, D. C., is still considering requests for transfer to the Finance School from eligible enlisted men at field installations.

The following qualifications are desired of enlisted men contemplating requests for transfer: a demonstrated ability to perform duties of an instructor; Aptitude Area General Technical (AA GT) score of 110 or above; graduate of Finance Procedures Course or Enlisted Finance Course at the Finance School; at least one year's experience in MOS 732 (Disbursing Specialist), or MOS 733 (Accounting Specialist) at post, camp or station level; and be in Grade E-7, E-6, or E-5.

"Finance Corps enlisted personnel meeting the qualifications listed above, and who desire to become instructors at the Finance School, are especially encouraged to request transfer to the school," said Colonel Sievers.

All requests for transfer should be forwarded to the Military Personnel Division of the Office of the Chief of Finance, Washington 25, D. C.

Requests must be forwarded through proper channels and be accompanied by a copy of DA Form 20, the Enlisted Qualification Record. A recommendation from the applicant's commanding officer must also accompany the request for transfer.

In no case should any request for transfer be forwarded direct to the Finance School at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

The provisions for requesting transfer to the Finance School, U. S. Army, for duty as an enlisted instructor are contained in Department of the Army Circular No. 614-4, dated 14 June 1956.

Rep. Miller Sees Leadership At Its Best In Infantry; "Let None Tamper With It"

Representative George P. Miller (D-Calif.), has paid high tribute to the infantryman in an extension of his remarks in the Congressional Record.

The infantryman "has the place of honor" in battle, he told his colleagues. Congressman Miller, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, recently visited the Infantry Center, Ft. Benning, Ga., along with other representatives of the Congress.

Here is what he had to say about the visit:

"Mr. Speaker, it was my good fortune, and that of many of my colleagues in the House and the Senate, to be guests of the Army at Fort Benning, Ga., on April 5 and 6. I wish to express my appreciation for the invitation to the Honorable Wilber Brucker, able Secretary of the Army, and to his legislative liaison chief, Maj. Gen. J. H. Michaelis. "I would also acknowledge the commendable leadership displayed at this vast infantry center and school which the Army has entrusted to the command of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, the commandant, and his assistants, Brig. Gen. R. L. Cook and Brig. Gen. J. V. Thompson. It is noteworthy that the inspiring example set by these senior officers has obviously made its mark on the junior officers and noncommissioned officers of the Infantry at Fort Benning.

"As many of us know, the Infantry's traditional motto is 'Follow me,' that is to say, follow the leader up front. This one thought, development of leaders whom men will follow in ground and airborne combat, is the constant over-riding theme of every action at Fort Benning. You see it everywhere you turn. Embellished on insignia, signs, literature is the call to 'Follow me.' In a world of shifting standards, the Infantry tells the world that it has this one unvarying rule today as it has had from time immemorial.

"The weapons and machines of modern warfare, although wondrous to see, are as nothing compared to the display of leadership at all levels of Infantry organization. The Infantry leaders realize all too well the sacrifices that the Queen of Battles makes upon our youth in ground combat. There is no other time when personal courage, example, and determination are at the premium required in an infantry attack, or if necessary, to stand and fight in the defense. Our young soldiers and paratroopers constantly look to their leaders, along side them in battle and sharing it all, and the old cry comes back clear and strong, 'Follow me.'

"We Members of Congress saw leadership again at its best at Fort Benning last week. For those of use who may have forgotten, we were reminded of this indispensable quality. Let none tamper with it. For it is the infantryman with his bayonet who is given the task of making the final decisive blow, the defeat of the enemy in battle. The infantryman pays the greatest price in casualties and fights under the most incredibly severe conditions of weather and emotional strain. The infantryman has the place of honor. The infantryman leads while the others follow. He deserves to be well led.

"As General Powell so well told us there at the old home of all Infantry everywhere:

"It is this man, the infantryman, and this man alone, as a most important member of our military team, who ultimately determines the final outcome of war. Upon his courage, determination, leadership, and training rests the future of the United States. In the age of the airplane and atomic weapons, the infantryman has countered every development by devising new tactics and techniques to meet the changing methods of warfare. The infantryman has maintained his decisive position in war by creative and progressive thinking, and this has never been more true than it is today."

From radar antennas to "readout" equipment...

AMF has experience you can use

• Giant search antennas made by AMF form a vital part of the nation's air surveillance network • And converting the incoming radar signals into instantly understandable information are brain-like AMF Electronic Data Display Systems. The ultimate in "readout" equipment, these compact console units accept either analog or digital information, instantly convert, coordinate, and display the data on the face of a cathode-ray tube. Incoming signals can be interleaved with synthetic symbols for immediate reference, and any segment of the display can be offset and enlarged whenever desired. • See for yourself why, for radar control of air, ground, and harbors, or for general-purpose computer reading, AMF has the experience and equipment you can use.

The Navy has let a contract for more than $24 million to the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., for modernization of 80 P5M-1 "Marlin" anti-submarine sea-planes.

The modernization program gets underway in May and will cover a 29-month period.

Production of "Marlins" began in 1951 and two versions—the P5M-1 and P5M-2—are being operated by the Navy. The 80 planes included in the contract are among the earlier models. The later models already have MAD units installed.

VMR-252 Adopts Twin Lightning Bolt Insignia

Marine Transport Squadron-252, based at MCAS Cherry Point, N. C., has adopted a new insignia.

The Squadron's Fairchild R4-Q transports now sport two lightning bolts on either side of their radar domes. In the past, the Squadron had a diamond painted on the front of the R4-Q's.

The changeover was necessitated by modifications in the planes. Recently fiber-board radar domes were incorporated onto the plane's noses. It was discovered that paint on the front of the planes distorted the radar.

ONE of the hottest projects currently being undertaken at Castle AFB, Calif., has been creating interest and arousing curiosity since it first began—preparation for the forthcoming arrival of the four-jet KC-135 aerial tanker.

When the sleek aircraft touches down on Castle's runway, the 93d Air Refueling Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Kenneth R. Rea, USAF, will be the first squadron in SAC to officially receive the first of many Boeing KC-135's being produced to supplant the KC-97 as the standard aerial tanker. Colonel Rea was appointed project officer for the conversion last Summer when it was announced that Castle would be the first base to receive the KC-135.

Colonel Rea immediately began setting up a staff to help him develop plans and programs for the conversion of the Air Refueling Squadron into a first class training squadron assigned the gigantic task of retraining SAC's present KC-97 crews.

Assisting Colonel Rea were Maj. Salvador E. Felices and Capt. Ernest E.

Campbell. Together, plans were drawn and all participated in the weapon system phasing group developed by Headquarters USAF.

Through the combined efforts of Headquarters SAC, Fifteenth Air Force and Castle, a Unit Manning Document (UMD) was finally published and orders were received to start implementing the conversion plan. On the first of March, the 93d Air Refueling Squadron was redesignated from a heavy reciprocating unit to a heavy jet refueling unit.

Training and assignment of personnel was begun. During that same month, the KC-135 project office was moved from Wing Headquarters to the 93d Air Refueling Squadron to implement the various programming plans and directives that were developed during the past eight months.

Major Felices was appointed Operations Officer for the Squadron; Capt. Campbell, Assistant Operations Officer; Maj. Joseph W. Norris, Engineering Officer; Capt. Frank R. Fowler, President of the KC-135 Standardization Board; and Capt. John J. Maislaszek, Squadron Supply Officer.

The initial program was set up at the manufacturer's plant so that the Squadron's flight line personnel and flight crews would be able to start a ground school at Castle in May.

Although the 93d Air Refueling Squadron will be responsible for all the KC-135 flying training in the Strategic Air Command, the 4017th Combat Crew Training Squadron will be responsible for the academic training of the KC-135 students.

Tentative date for the arrival of the first KC-135 is May. Representatives from the Air Proving Ground Command will conduct the Phase VII (operational capability) test, the last of a series of rigid performance and flight tests given to all new aircraft. Also participating in the test will be maintenance personnel and one of the flight crews of the Squadron headed by Major Fowler.

The first KC-135 to be officially assigned to the 93d Air Refueling Squadron will arrive some time in June. During the remainder of that month and through October, the Squadron will rapidly build up to a normal number of assigned aircraft.

From October through May of next year, additional KC-135's will be assigned to augment the training program, i. e., a sufficient number of aircraft to train the required number of student crews to meet the production schedule of Boeing.

The B-52's and the KC-135's will be flying compatible missions. With the KC-135's replacing the KC-97's, refueling can now be accomplished well above the weather, resulting in a substantial saving of both time and fuel.

AF AID SOCIETY HELP AVERAGES $98

The Air Force Aid Society, in its 11th annual report just released, reports that 1956 assistance amounted to $2,828,777, with the average application for help requesting $98—an increase of 53 per cent since the Society was established.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, Society President and Eastern Air Lines Chairman of the Board, said that $337,788 was disbursed in the form of grants and $2,490,989 in loans.

In addition, $47,147 was used from the General Henry H. Arnold Education Fund to provide college scholarships for 105 sons and daughters of Air Force personnel.

During 1956, the Society collected $1,027,994, a decrease of $112,321 from the previous year—largely accounted for by the $100,000 donated by Mr. Arthur Godfrey in 1955.

Net worth of the Society at the start of 1957 was $16,708,903.34.

Missile Office ISO

Appointment of Mr. Paul Frankfurt to the position of Information Services Officer at the Ballistic Missiles Office of Air Materiel Command is announced by Brig. Gen. Ben I. Funk, USAF, Deputy Director for Ballistic Missiles.

Mr. Frankfurt, who has been in Government service for 14 years, comes to Inglewood, Calif., from Air Materiel Command Headquarters in Dayton, Ohio where he was Public Information Officer for the Directorate of Procurement and Production since 1951.

"PAPA" The Martin Matador TM61-B is the fourth generation of a famous family. As the lineal descendant of the first operational tactical missile in service with the Air Force—and the first pilotless bomber having complete interchangeability of parts—the performance, operability and advanced engineering of the Matador give it top rating in our missile arsenal. Today, this important weapon is one of five major Martin projects in the field of rockets and guided missiles that are under development or in production for the Army, Navy and the Air Force. It was the original Martin Matador, papa of them all, that launched the new age of missiles in America.

The Service Exchanges. The Services have reason to be proud of the strong and vigorous case made in their behalf by Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, before the Philbin Subcommittee considering the Department of Defense's request for a modest liberalization of the list of items the exchanges may stock.

As reported in last week's JOURNAL, General Parks minced no words in pointing out the brashness with which the retail merchants' associations have been importuning their members to bring pressure to bear upon their Congressmen to deny the Services' request. He told the Committee that if they wanted letters and telegrams on the other side of the question he could arrange that they be literally swamped with them not only from military personnel and their families but also from veterans organizations, National Guard and Reserve Associations, and from many influential business, civic, and political leaders.

General Parks was direct and to the point, too, in pointing out the "many inaccuracies and misstatements of fact" in the presentations made to the committee by the retail associations' witnesses.

One strong point made by General Parks is the fact that the privilege of buying at slightly lower rates at their own convenient Exchanges is not a fringe benefit peculiar to the Services—such privileges of buying at discount or "off-list" prices are most widespread in business and industry. He quoted a report made by a prominent civilian management consultant firm for the Cordiner Committee which stated that "Fringe benefits accorded enlisted men in the Armed Forces are a lesser percentage of compensation and a lesser number of dollars per capita per annum than they are for non-exempt employees in civilian industry—18.7 per cent as against an all-industry figure of 20.3 per cent, $684 as against $819."

Discount or off-list purchasing is accorded employees of retail stores; 2,500 discount houses offer cut rates; buying clubs offer one-quarter of all our total adult population discounts on some merchandise; at least 200,000 legitimate retailers purchase merchandise outside their regular line and make it available to their employees at discount from list; factory stores account for another segment of low-margin retailing; and farmers' markets draw their traffic not from farmers but from the urban and suburban populations. It is estimated that at least 50 per cent of all the national retail sales is currently conducted on a flexible, multi-price basis.

General Parks pointed out that the firms that conduct these enterprises for their employees do it to help their employees and to aid in stabilizing employment and keep them happy on their jobs. Post Exchanges, although they are not as widespread or as beneficial as many similar plans in industry, have the same purpose of assisting military families and encouraging them to remain in Service careers.

It's such hard, cold facts as General Parks laid before the Committee members that will show them how modest is the request of the Services and how inflated the charges of the opposition. At present, retail sales in the military exchanges constitute .2690 of one per cent of the total national retail store sales volume. If the few additional items requested are authorized—this percentage would rise to .2737—a net increase of 47 ten thousandths of one per cent of the total retail stores sales volume in the U. S. As General Parks remarked, "By any standard, this amount can be considered inconsequential."

More Piecemeal Pay? Blocking of consideration of a general revision of Service pay by this session of Congress will constitute a real body blow to our National Defense structure. With the economy pinch getting stronger, it will mean less and less funds for the hardware of the Armed Forces while at the same time requiring larger and larger proportions of the appropriated funds being drained off by the wasteful turnover in

Protect The Serviceman

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I note with interest your recent comment upon the attempts of the House Armed Services Committee to have extended by law, the items which our domestic exchanges may carry for sale to military personnel on military reservations. The article indicated that retail trade groups are opposed to the Pentagon plan.

During my service in the Army I have observed the Post Exchange change from an agency for the service of military personnel with minimum prices to further extend their limited pay to an agency of limited service to military personnel with many prices comparable to prices in retail stores outside the reservation. It appears that our Post Exchange system has been relegated to an on-post concession with a limited variety of merchandise.

To counter the efforts of the retail trade groups to maintain the military services as a captive market, it should be pointed out that there are innumerable discount houses throughout our country catering merchandise to membership at cost plus 5 or 10% or at similar low prices. In many of these discount houses membership may be had for the asking or no membership is required.

I realize the desires of the retail trade groups and Congress has been to protect the local merchants located near military posts. However, why not protect the Serviceman? Our military personnel are the ones who are being constantly uprooted from their locations—moved to other locations; and/or separated from their families. Post Exchanges with unlimited variety of merchandise at minimum prices sold only to military personnel would be but small compensation to them for the inconveniences encountered.

In addition, through unit and welfare funds, the profits realized from the sale of merchandise by exchanges to military personnel are used for providing many essentials for the American way of life for our soldiers that are not provided for by appropriated funds.

Why should Congress aid retailers to discriminate against military personnel who are already sacrificing other privileges in life to serve their country?

COLONEL OF ARMOR

A Medico Writes

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I am a Regular Army Medical Officer. I agree with "Medical Officer United States Army" in THE JOURNAL 6 April 1957.

I was in favor of a pay raise for Medical Officers, but I am also in favor of increased pay of the line. Most of us Medical Officers were not interested in a pay differential with the line. We were interested in enough pay to feed, house, clothe, and educate our families.

It is a difficult situation when we are given enough pay to live on, but lose the respect and admiration of our comrades.

MAJOR, MC, USA

The Certificate War

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It's a sad story when an officer of the Armed Services must certify to the contents of leftover fats in a commissary store, as your article skilled personnel and the constant training of replacements.

It will also mean an extension of efforts at piecemeal pay increases. Already it has been found necessary to give bonuses to attract and retain doctors and dentists. Efforts are now underway to provide extra pay for lawyers (see story on page 2). Without a general pay readjustment it is inevitable that each civilian professional category—engineers, Ph.D.'s, chemists, scientists, etc.—will seek extra pay for their fellows in uniform.

The only answer is to let some version of the Cordiner bill go to Congress. There the Committees can hear testimony from all sides and come up with some form of a general pay bill that can serve as the necessary incentive to retain skilled and devoted personnel and slow down the present turnover which is so destructive to both morale and efficiency.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—A warning that the atomic bomb, together with the potential range of aircraft and missiles, has made the defense of the nation "more difficult, more expensive, and less certain of attainment" was laid before Congress this week in a comprehensive study of civilian, military and naval thinking on the atomic bomb.

50 Years Ago—Two eminent Greek mathematicians have just informed the Academy of Science in Athens that the existing idea of building aeroplanes is quite wrong. The proper way, according to these specialists, would be to abandon the present method of building a balloon that ought to be steered, although it is heavier than air, and to build them with twin screws, which are worked in contrary directions, for the aeroplane does not fly; it rather progresses in a series of bounds or skips of greater or less length.

90 Years Ago—The question of continuing punishment by the lash in the British Army was brought up in the House of Commons and elicited a good deal of discussion. The motion was to discontinue the infliction in times of peace.

(THE JOURNAL, 13 April) pointed out.

The Pentagon is taking a big step forward in enhancing the prestige of military service when it does away with such a ridiculous requirement.

We need to get back as quickly as we can to former days when a military man's signature was taken as his word. Enough of this foolishness where an officer must certify that he won't take any records from his 201 file.

A HOPEFUL MAJOR

Saddened By Mediocrity

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

How much longer must an Army Officer fight to find a job where he is clearly needed and which is obviously required and essential? When will the top authorities—military and civilian—wake up to the reality that the Army is burdened down with excess Officers, not quality but quantity? When will those in charge accept and act upon the proven truth that any amount of quantity will not make up for the shortage of quality? Are they afraid to act boldly and with wisdom and conviction in a matter that perhaps is politically or socialistically infeasible? How much longer must we accept mediocrity and policies which are clearly little more than an "opiate of the masses" vis-a-vis quality, responsibility, authority and ability?

As a Regular whose efficiency reports for the past five years have included the remark "this man is positively General Officer material," this letter is saddening and depressing.

"A VICTIM"

Accent on Youth? Journal Surveys General-Flag Officers 45 Years Old Or Younger

From first page—

young generals filling assignments in the Special Weapons and Missile fields.

The Air Force's Assistant Chief of Staff for Guided Missiles is Brig. Gen. Charles M. McCorkle, who was 42 on 29 January.

Two 45-year-old Army brigadier generals are Arthur W. Oberbeck, Director of Special Weapons Development for the Continental Army Command, and Alfred E. Starbird (he will be 45 on 28 April), who is Director of Military Applications for the Atomic Energy Commission.

THE NAVY'S YOUNGEST FLAG OFFICER is RADM. Horacio Rivero, jr., USN. He will be 47 on 5 May. Admiral Rivero has been Deputy Chief, Armed Forces Special Weapons Projects, but is under orders to command Destroyer Flotilla One.

The Marine Corps has two general officers 45 or younger.

They are Brig. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, USMC, Assistant Commander of the 3d Marine Corps Division in the Far East who was 44 on 7 January, and Brig. Gen. Carey A. Randall, USMC, who will be 45 on 15 November.

General Randall, who is Military Assistant to Secretary Wilson, received his new rank recently after having been designated for star status in a "spot promotion" action while he serves in his present assignment.

The Air Force's 64 general officers with birthdays in 1912 and later and the Army's 24 generals who are now 45 or younger indicate that the two Services certainly will receive more than 800 years of service—probably closer to 1000—from these outstanding officers before they retire.

Here is a rundown on the generals from whom the top leaders of the Army and Air Force will come during the next five to 10 years.

ARMY

THE ARMY'S YOUNGEST major generals are John H. Michaelis, Legislative Liaison Chief, and William C. Westmoreland, Secretary of the General Staff.

General Michaelis, who will be 45 in August, was brought to the Pentagon from command of SETAF at Verona, Italy. A 32 year old airborne regimental commander, who won a WWII battlefield promotion to colonel, General Michaelis later served as senior aide to General Eisenhower, then Army Chief of Staff. He led the famed 27th Infantry "Wolfhound" Regiment during the early days of the fighting in Korea as a lieutenant colonel (having reverted to that rank in June 1947), was given another battlefield promotion to colonel in August 1950 and was made a brigadier general from 1 December 1956.

General Westmoreland, who was 43 in March, was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1936 (the same year as General Michaelis) as Cadet First Captain and Regimental Commander.

He saw action in North Africa, Tunisia, Sicily and Europe during WWII, took parachute and airborne training in 1946, serving as Chief of Staff of the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C., from 1947 to 1950.

General Westmoreland, after service as an instructor at the Command and General Staff College and Army War College, led the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in Korea in 1952, returning to Washington in 1953 for a top personnel post.

Promoted to brigadier general in November 1952 and made a major general on 1 December 1956, General Westmoreland has been Secretary of the General Staff since July 1955.

There is speculation in the Army that he soon will be given a new assignment—possibly as commander of one of the airborne divisions.

ARMY BRIGADIERS

BRIG. GEN. STANLEY R. LARSEN is the Army's most youthful one-star officer. He will be 42 on Veterans Day, 11 November. Now Assistant Commander of the 10th Infantry Division in Germany, he is headed for duty as Assistant Commandant at the Infantry Center, Ft. Benning, Ga.

At the White House, Andrew J. Goodpaster, jr., who is Secretary of the Staff, was 42 in February, is certain for future top-level assignments.

Creighton W. Abrams, jr., who will be 43 in August, fills an important post as Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff for Reserves Components. He was prominent during the recent Capitol action on the Army's plan to require six months training for National Guard recruits.

Newly promoted to brigadier general is Chester V. Clifton, jr., onetime Special Assistant to General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, then JCS Chairman. Now Deputy Chief of Army Information, General Clifton will be 44 in September.

Brig. Gen. Morris O. Edwards, Assistant Commander of the 5th Infantry Division at Ft. Ord, Calif., was 45 last August.

Brig. Gen. William J. Ely, 45 last December, is now serving as Deputy Director, J-4, U.S. European Command.

Thomas B. Evans, 45 last June, is Assistant Quartermaster General for Substances.

John A. Heintges, Deputy CG at the Ft. Dix, N. J., Infantry Center, was 44 last December.

Harold K. Johnson, Assistant Commander of the 8th Infantry Division in Europe, was 45 in February.

Robert G. MacDonnell, Assistant Commandant of the Engineer School at Ft. Belvoir, Va., was 45 last May.

George R. Mather, Director of Personnel Policies, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, was 45 last June.

Richard D. Meyer, Chief of Plans and Programs, Deputy Chief of Staff, Logistics, was 45 last August.

Frank W. Moorman, Army Attache in France and former Secretary of the General Staff, was 45 in February.

Arthur W. Oberbeck, who was 45 in Jan., is Director of Special Weapons Development for the Continental Army Command, with station at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

Milton L. Ogden, 45 last July, commands the 56th AAA Brigade at Ft. Devens, Mass.

James H. Polk, who was 45 last December, is Assistant Commander of the 3d Armored Division in Europe.

Alfred E. Starbird, who will be 45 on 28 April, is Director of Military Applications, Atomic Energy Commission.

Joseph W. Stilwell, jr., who was 45 in March, is CofS of V Corps in Germany.

John L. Throckmorton, 44 in February, is Commandant of Cadets at West Point.

Robert C. Tripp, Assistant Chief of Transportation for Military Operations, was 45 last October.

Robert N. Tyson, Assistant Commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps at Ft. Bragg, N. C., was 45 last September.

Russell W. Volckmann, 45 last October, is also at Ft. Bragg as Assistant Commander of the 82d Airborne Division.

Bombing World Series Set For Fla.-Texas

The 1957 "World Series of Bombing" competition will be held at both Pinecastle AFB, Fla., and Carswell AFB, Tex., Maj. Gen. Robert H. Terrill, USAF, Director of SAC Operations, has announced.

Heavy bombers, both the B-52 and B-36, will fly out of Carswell, while B-47s will complete their missions from Pinecastle.

This year's competition will start 21 August with Pinecastle as the overall headquarters for the week-long flying event.

ADMINISTRATION FAILURE to fight earnestly for Cordiner Committee recommendations would jeopardize chances of the Pentagon's again getting top civilians to serve on defense advisory groups involved in controversial studies. President Cordiner of the General Electric Co. and his associates spent weeks on the complicated pay study, traveled thousands of miles and talked with hundreds of Servicemen.

THEY WERE ASSURED that their conclusions would not be pigeon holed. SecDef Wilson has backed up this pledge with a pay bill sent to the Budget Bureau, but as The Journal went to press the Secretary had yet to be successful in getting a BoB green light, despite the fact that Mr. Wilson took particular pains to brief President Eisenhower in Georgia late last year on the trend of the Cordiner Study.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS concede their plan may be turned down, but they insist that the proposals should be presented to Congress. If the BoB frustrates this previously held assurance, then SecDef Wilson and his successor will find it rough going to convince men like Mr. Cordiner to stick their necks out on Defense problems.

NAVY SEC'Y GATES this week held his first news conference since moving up from the Under Sec'y billet. It was a nautical get-together; coffee was served. PENTAGON REPORTERS WERE HOPEFUL that they would be asked back for a second cup sometime soon. During the past several years, news conferences with the Service Secretaries have been few and far between. NEW ASST. SECDEF SNYDER is encouraging the Service Secretaries to meet more frequently with newsmen. Aside from improving the flow of information, such sessions would boost the prestige of the jobs held by the three Secretaries. Another benefit would be the discouragement of unauthorized leaks by "eager beaver" subordinates who in the past, rightly or wrongly, have felt that the story of their particular Service was not being put across to the public.

THE NAVY'S HUMP PROBLEM curiously could scuttle career opportunities for some officers who were chosen as particularly outstanding from below promotion zones. The Navy says it wants authority to retire prematurely some captains who have five years or more in grade. Heretofore, a captain could count on reaching 30 years' service. THE NEW NAVY PLAN, if adopted, would end such a guarantee; some captains would be retired before serving 30 years, and some of these could be one time "hot shots" who made captain rank ahead of their contemporaries.

FOUR ARMY LT. GENS. are headed for retirement this year, which will mean some major shifts. Laurin L. Williams, the Comptroller, goes out in June, followed by First Army Commander, Thomas W. Herren, in July. The same month, Alonzo P. Fox, Military Advisor to the Asst. SecDef for International Security Affairs, retires, with Stanley R. Mickelsen, head of the Army's Air Defense Command, due to leave the Service in October. SENIOR ARMY MAJOR GENERAL is Clark L. Ruffner, USA, now head of the MAAG at Bonn, Germany.

THE NAVY HAS "RUSHED" a new General Order on consumption of alcoholic beverages to men in the fleet. Former Sec'y. Thomas signed the order, just now released. Its date: 19 Nov. 1956. The G.O. stresses that the established policy "is to encourage abstinence, enforce moderation and punish overindulgence."

THE TACTICAL AIR COMMAND reports that during 1956 its planes airdropped 289,818 paratroops. Other TAC data: overall cost of operation is about $29,000 per hour; planes fly over 1000 hours each day, using runways, taxiways and aprons on TAC bases which would make a 24-foot wide highway from headquarters at Langley AFB, Va., to San Antonio, Tex. ONE MORE TAC FACT: "to keep itself and higher headquarters informed TAC prepared a report every two hours during 1956."

A NAVAL RESERVE COMMANDER is now serving a year's active duty with the Air Force. He is famed photographer Maurice Constant. His mission: to make portrait shots of Air Force general officers. The photographs will be used in the National Archives, also will be displayed at the USAF Academy.

THE AIR FORCE IS CLAIMING it has a jet transport for quick movement of troops. According to a SAC report, the Boeing KC-135 tanker "can also be used as troop and cargo transport without any modification." It's reported that 80 passengers or 25 tons of cargo can be handled on the upper deck inasmuch as all the aerial refueling equipment is on the lower deck.

START OF THE EASTER RECESS on Capitol Hill this week found the Senate Armed Services Committee yet to hold a single hearing this session on military legislation. The House Committee has passed a number of bills, including the Sub-standard Quarters Rental and the Nurse-Women's Medical Specialist Career bills.

THE AIR UNIVERSITY'S Periodical Index for 1956 devotes more than a page to items about Army Aviation. Those who are interested in the bibliographic information would be advised, however, not to look up the material under "Army Aviation." THE LISTING: "Air Force—Army—U.S."

THE ARMY NURSE CORPS is studying development of new types of field clothing. There's dissatisfaction with a number of present items, including the field boot. Another problem area is "Long John" underwear; the Nurses think an improved and better fitting substitute can be found. BASIC OBJECTIVE is to make field clothing for Army women more feminine.

A PROVOCATIVE CHARGE that U.S. Service school children in Europe again are being "short-changed" in their education will be put before the public next week. President Mary Hoague of the Overseas Teachers Association has told The Journal that "some action must be taken in Washington or the entire dependent school program will collapse." SHE IS EXPECTED to carry the fight for the school program to top Pentagon officials, members of Congress, and to executives of the influential National Education Association. She will assert that "the current policy is certainly not sound educationally and is certainly not providing the children of our military personnel the 'superior' education they were promised and which they deserve." (The Journal, which last year was instrumental in winning a reversal at the Pentagon of budget cuts which threatened to curtail school instruction in Europe, intends to follow closely the presentations made by Miss Hoague in the Capital).

Army Estimates 16.2 Min. To Sew Trousers With Pin Method; By Chalk Only 13 Min.

THE Army has issued a new directive concerning the application of black $\frac{1}{2}$ " braid to Army Green trousers.

This document, Circular No. 32-4, tells how to do it, using (1) the chalk method, which requires 13 minutes per pair of trousers, in a 10-step operation and (2) the pin method, which has only nine steps, but takes 3.2 minutes longer.

SEWING BRAID ON ARMY GREEN TROUSERS—CHALK METHOD

Step	Approximate time for one pair trousers in minutes
1. Mark both trouser legs for position-braid	0.7
2. Obtain trouser braid, align braid to one trouser leg and position both to the foot of the machine at the pocket	4
3. Sew braid to the top portion of the trouser leg (area above bottom edge of the pocket)	1.8
4. Pull trouser leg from under the foot, get braid and align (to chalk mark) to other trouser leg and align both to foot of the machine	3
5. Sew braid to the top portion of the trouser leg	1.5
6. Pull from under the foot and turn the wrong side out	4
7. Position one trouser leg to foot (to sew length of leg)	2
8. Sew braid to trouser leg along entire length of the leg	3.5
9. Pull from under the foot, get other leg and align it to the machine	8
10. Sew braid down the length of the trousers	3.4
Total time	13.0

SEWING BRAID ON ARMY GREEN TROUSERS—PIN METHOD

Step	Approximate time for one pair trousers in minutes
1. Position braid on trousers and pin	3.0
2. Position one trouser leg at the pocket to the foot of the machine	4
3. Sew braid to top position of trouser leg (area around pocket and the waist)	2.2
4. Position other trouser leg at the pocket, to the foot of the machine; and sew braid to the trouser leg (top portion)	2.3
5. Turn the trousers wrong side out	5
6. Position one trouser leg to foot of the machine to sew braid to trouser leg along the side and bottom	3
7. Sew braid to trouser leg along the side of trouser leg (full length of leg)	3.5
8. Pull finished leg from under the foot, get the next leg, position it to the machine to sew entire length of leg	6
9. Sew braid the entire length of the leg	3.4
Total time	16.2

The Army said the above information, including the elapsed time required to perform the operation, is based upon extensive experimentation conducted at Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot to determine which of various types of sewing machines tested were best adapted to perform the operation efficiently and in a minimum of time. This experiment indicates that best results are obtained from use of machine FSN 3530-190-8764, 65, and 66.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

WHEN General Nathan F. Twining takes over as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, 15 August, he and Mrs. Twining plan to remain in the same quarters at the corner of Jackson and Grant Avenues, Fort Myer, that they have called home ever since moving there.

They will also keep the same neighbors they have now at the Virginia reservation, General Thomas White, who is to replace General Twining as Chief of Staff of the Air Force, and his wife, deciding also to stay in their present quarters, a half block from the Twinings.

Mrs. White has decided it is simpler to remain where they are—a decision one can readily understand when it is known that General and Mrs. White—both ichthyologists—have in a third floor bedroom at their quarters some fifteen different types of rare tropical fish.

General and Mrs. White have made many field trips to Panama, Mexico and Brazil to fill their aquariums.

Sunrise Service—

Invitations have been received for the Easter sunrise Service at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, guests to be greeted in the formal gardens by the Commanding General, Maj. Gen. Leonard Heaton, and his staff. General and Mrs. Heaton have recently returned from a trip to Florida and San Antonio, Texas, inclement weather driving them homeward.

Wooldridges Have Guest—

The Commandant of the National War College, VAdm. Edmund T. Wooldridge, and Mrs. Wooldridge will welcome this coming week, Miss Dorothy Thompson, recently back from a tour of the Middle East, who will be their house guest and who will give a lecture the night of the 25th. A reception will follow in the rotunda of the college and a buffet supper will precede the lecture.

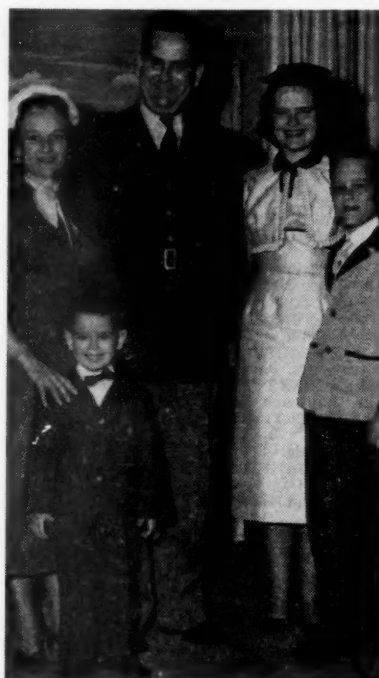

Navy Drs.' Wives' Benefit—

The annual fashion show luncheon of the Navy Doctors' Wives Club was held at the National Naval Medical Center Officers' Club, on 11 April, and as in the past, the proceeds went to the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club of Washington, the "Home Away from Home" for enlisted personnel, directed and maintained by Service women.

The Eagle Lounge of the Club offered

NAVY DOCTOR'S WIFE of Bethesda, Mrs. F. J. Sweeney and daughter, Meloney, make cakes for the "Baked Goods" booth while modelling samples from the "apron" booth at the annual luncheon and fashion show held at the officers club, US Naval Medical Center, 11 April, for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club, of Washington, D. C.

an array of articles for sale, which included aprons, baked goods, "white elephants" and special gifts; while highlighting the affair on the covered terrace, with its sweeping view of the lawn and trees, a presentation by one of Washington's leading stores, of a gay Spring fashion showing took place.

Seated at the head table were representatives of the SSM&A Club, Mesdames Herman B. Feldman, president; Edmund B. Taylor; William D. Chandler; Howard L. Collins, Navy Executive Board member; Arthur Radford, honorary vice-president; Arthur MacArthur, honorary officer emeritus; Ralph E. Wilson, treasurer; and Schuyler N. Gilmore, general chairman of the benefit; Lester J. Pope, assistant chairman; and Charles L. Denton, president of the Navy Doctors' Wives Club.

Responsible for the successful sale were Mrs. Robert B. Brown, in charge of baked goods; Mrs. Robert B. Ware, head of "white elephants"; and Mrs. Edward C. Kenney responsible for aprons. Mrs. Eugene V. Jobe and Mrs. Evan C. Stone were luncheon chairmen, while Mrs. Leslie B. Marshall arranged the colorful Easter decorations. Others participating in the success of the event were Mrs. Langdon C. Newman, hostess chairman; Mrs. John S. Hanten, door prizes; Mrs. Lloyd B. Shone, tickets; Mrs. Adrian J. Quarles, James H. Douglas, Muir Fairchild, Lyle S. Garlock, Dudley C. Sharp, Richard E. Horner, Joseph Smith, Manuel Asensio, Charles I. Carpenter, Walter I. Miller, L. F. Moseley and Harry W. Finley. Also, among those present were Col. Phyllis D. S. Gray, Director of WAF, and Lt. Col. Helen O'Day, Protocol Officer.

Club members brought contributions of clothing to the meeting to benefit the Jango Bargain Shop.

Wide-eyed wonder greeted the real, live man-sized "bunny" when the children in the Pediatric ward at Walter Reed Hospital were entertained at an Easter party by the Club, on 17 April. Squeals of delight were heard when Airman Roger DesRossiers, bedecked in Easter bunny splendor with long pink ears and a fuzzy tail, presented the little patients with gay balloons, festive hats, toys and holiday baskets filled with bright colored eggs. There were Easter decorations, too, and refreshments to climax the wondrous day.

The annual Easter party of the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club was planned by Mrs. R. Howard Lackey, chairman of the hospital liaison committee of the Club, and her committee: Mrs. Olin F. McIlnay, Mrs. Larry Smith and Mrs. Marley C. Clark. Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, Commanding General of Walter Reed, looked in on the festivities, and invited guests were—Mesdames Twining, Dan C. U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

COAST Guard Headquarters estimates that 19 active duty officers will be given temporary promotions on 1 May.

Present indications are that that group will include: one to captain, five to commander, six to lieutenant commander, and seven to lieutenant.

In addition, it may be possible for Headquarters to advance two captains, one commander, one lieutenant, and two lieutenants, before the end of April. It was pointed out, however, that these estimates may be thrown off if anticipated retirements do not take place.

At the same time, Headquarters said, five radio electricians will be moved up to warrant rank, W-1, on 1 May.

SPAR Is Straight-Shooter

Lt. (jg) Virginia H. Schroeder, USCGR (W), on duty with the Reserve Division, Coast Guard Headquarters, has become the first woman in Coast Guard history to win the Expert Pistol Medal.

She attained this signal distinction during the semi-annual qualification attempt by Headquarters officers and men to win the honor with either the .38 Cal. or .45 Cal. pistol. The shoot recently was held at the White House Police Pistol Range. Lieutenant Schroeder shot 322 out of a possible 400 with the .38 Cal. pistol to qualify as an expert.

The police officer-in-charge of the range asked if she would like to try her luck with the .45 Cal. She said she had never fired the .45 Cal. but would "give it a go." She poured in 312 of 400 shots to win qualification as expert with the .45 Cal. pistol with points to spare.

RUNWAY VACUUM CLEANER. This giant vacuum cleaner was designed by the Coleman Engineering Co. of Los Angeles on an ARDC development contract. It will clean foreign objects from one million square feet of runway in one hour. This original model is now at Wright Air Development Center. It will be manufactured and marketed commercially by the Fruehauf Trailer Co.

Tests Begin On Army's Tilt-Wing Turbine VTOL

Vertol Aircraft Corporation announces it has completed shop work at Morton, Pa., on its tilt-wing VTOL research aircraft and has begun functional tests.

The turbine-powered aircraft was funded by the U. S. Army and developed in cooperation with the Office of Naval Research.

The aircraft, designated the Vertol 76, is powered by a Lycoming T-53 gas turbine engine placed aft of the cockpit and atop a tubular fuselage structure.

Its wing and two counter-revolving rotor-propellers are tilted as a unit through a 90-degree arc for vertical take-off and landing or level flight. Conventional airplane controls become effective when the wing is tilted to a horizontal position.

Two ducted fans in the tail section control yaw and pitch in a hovering regime.

The Vertol 76 is designed to have STOL characteristics, as well. On take-off or landing, the wing may be rotated to any desired position between vertical and horizontal, depending on runway length and/or cargo overloading.

Ground testing is underway. Flight testing will begin in the near future.

X-13 Makes Complete VTOL Flight Sequence

The Air Force's jet-powered vertical takeoff and landing research airplane, the Ryan X-13 Vertijet accomplished its first complete flight sequences 11 April from vertical takeoff, transition to horizontal flight and return to vertical landing.

The flights were made at the Air Force flight test center at Edwards Air Force Base, where the demonstrations culminated an 18-month flight test program.

Marking a new technical breakthrough in aeronautical science, the X-13 Vertijet made its takeoff while suspended in vertical attitude. Lifting the X-13 free, Ryan test pilot Peter F. Girard then made a gradual transition from the vertical attitude to normal horizontal flight. Returning, Girard put the Vertijet through the transition from horizontal flight to full vertical hovering at zero air speed, then "sat down."

After making two complete demonstrations, the plane was then lowered to a horizontal position and moved back to its hangar.

Approve NACA Program

The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation (HR 224) authorizing a $44.7 million construction program for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Almost half of the program ($20.9 million) involves new construction: a 3.5-foot hypersonic tunnel at the Ames Aeronautical Laboratory, Calif.; a rocket systems research facility at the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory, Ohio; a hypersonic physics test area, a hypersonic helium blowdown tunnel and a high-speed leg for the unitary plan tunnel, all at Langley Aeronautical Laboratory.

In addition, other facilities at Lewis, Ames, Langley and Wallops Island, Md., will be expanded and modernized.

$47-Million Contract For Convair F-106Bs

A $47,000,000 contract for supersonic F-106B all-weather interceptors has been awarded to Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation by the U. S. Air Force, Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., Convair president, announces.

The new F-106B is a sister ship to the delta-wing F-106A for which $216,000,000 worth of contracts were announced in January. Prototypes of the F-106A have been undergoing flight test at Edwards AFB, Calif., since December.

Convair will produce the F-106A and F-106B at its San Diego plant, which is the home of the F-102A supersonic all-weather interceptors. The F-102As, now in peak production, are already in service with squadrons of the Air Defense Command.

C-130 Given Arctic Test at Eielson AFB

The U. S. Air Force's new propjet transport, the C-130 Hercules, has completed two and one-half months of testing at Eielson AFB, Alaska, to determine its suitability for operations in the Arctic.

Air Force pilots flew the plane in temperatures ranging downward to 48 degrees below zero. The report stated that they started its four Allison T56-A1 propjet engines quickly, without necessity of pre-heat. They taxied the big plane across deep snow and across hard-packed runways.

The airplane, manufactured by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation at Marietta, Ga., is reported to have taken off and landed on slick ice-and-snow covered runways in distances as short as those required on cleared, paved runways in warm climates. Reversible-pitch propellers and the anti-skid system on the tandem landing gear brought the transport to a quick stop.

In the sub-zero weather, the Hercules is said to have climbed to some of its highest altitudes and cruised at maximum speeds.

Army troops, dressed in Arctic clothing, were paraded. And a truck, a howitzer, a field ambulance, containers of food, and a platform bearing supplies were dropped by parachute onto the snow at Ft. Greely.

A simulated assault mission was made, with 50 Army troops from the Heavy Mortar Company of the 9th Infantry going on a three-hour-and-20-minute flight in the C-130.

To assess its potential as an aerial hospital ship in the cold country, an aeromedical group from the 18th Air Force loaded litter patients into the C-130's cargo compartment while the plane was parked on the snow-covered taxi strip.

The test program on the C-130 at Eielson was conducted by the Director of Flight and All-Weather Testing from the Air Research and Development Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio. Lt. Col. L. G. Gamble was commander of the task force. Capt. P. E. Amidon directed test engineering. The pilot was Capt. R. A. Bunn.

The Air Proving Ground Command, Eglin AFB, Fla., participated in the tests. This command was represented by Capt. Russell Dobyns and Capt. K. L. Scheffer.

Navy Awards $146.1 Million For Eight Ships Of New Missile-Destroyer Class

THE Navy has let four contracts in the amount of $146.1 million for construction of a new class of guided-missile destroyers.

The contracts call for construction of eight ships with DDG designations. They are of a new hull design which is an evolution of the Forrest Sherman-Class (DD-931). Like the Sherman, the new ships will make use of aluminum superstructures and include the most recent habitability features, including air conditioning for all living quarters.

The new class of destroyers will be 431 feet long, have 47 foot beams and a standard displacement of 3,370.

Each of the ships will be equipped to fire the "Tartar" surface-to-air missile. In addition, they will carry two 5"/54 single-mount rapid-fire guns and the latest anti-submarine weapons.

The ships will be powered by steam turbines geared to twin shafts. They will carry a crew of 24 officers and 330 enlisted men.

Lead ship in the class, the DDG-952, as well as the DDG-953, will be built by the Bath Iron Works, Bath, Maine. The Bath contract, totals $44 million. Of this amount, $9.5 million is for preparation of plans and other data for the entire DDG-952 class.

The New York Shipbuilding Corp., Camden, N. J., will construct the DDG-954, 955 and 956 for $49.1 million.

Defoe Shipbuilding Co., Bay City, Mich., will build the DDG-957 and 958 for $34.5 million.

Todd Shipyards, Inc., Seattle, Wash., was awarded an $18.4 million contract for construction of the DDG-959.

Industry Notes

AF-GE Radar Jammers

A $42 million Air Force contract for advanced Electronic countermeasures equipment has been received by the Light Military Electronic Equipment Department of General Electric Company.

This is the second consummated contract from the Air Materiel Command, Dayton, Ohio for production of radar jammers received by the LMEE Department within the past year, according to H. F. Konig, general manager. The $42 million contract supersedes and represents an increase of the $20 million letter contract announced a month ago.

The equipment developed by G-E at Utica in conjunction with the Air Force, "blinds" radar by transmitting a radio signal on the same frequency as the radar impulse. In this manner the radar echo from the target is covered up.

Marquardt Earnings Up

Marquardt Aircraft Co. had net earnings after taxes of $605,236 for the year ended 31 Dec., equal to $2.35 per share and up 80 per cent over the previous year. Roy E. Marquardt, president, states in the annual report to stockholders. As of 24 Feb. 1957, the company's backlog stood at $55,000,000, exclusive of government facilities contracts.

New AF Facility Admits Only Dust-Free People

Completion of a new one and one-half million-dollar Air Force facility, where dust control is so critical that employees will receive air-blast baths before entering certain areas, has been announced by G. A. Hoyt, Manager of the Ordnance Section of General Electric Company's Missile and Ordnance Systems Department.

The facility, constructed on a mountain top in the Berkshire Mountains near Hancock, Mass., will be used for the assembly and testing of high-precision radar antennas for a high priority Air Force program.

Unique precautions will be taken to keep dust and dirt to a minimum due to the high-precision nature of the equipment being assembled. A special shoe cleaner is installed at the entrance for use by all who enter. Special nylon suits and shoes will be worn by all personnel.

Dr. Weller will establish residence in Rochester, N. Y. after 1 May with his wife and 19-year old daughter.

ROK Army Is Second In Free World

in their vicious assault across the 38th parallel, caught the Republic of Korea forces without armor and artillery support. Courage alone could not hold and the ROK forces were driven back. The necessary job of providing the ROK Army with everything it needed—trained men, weapons and good leaders—was left to KMAG, whose advisers ate, slept and fought alongside their Korean counterparts, creating a mutual trust and respect which have assisted KMAG in developing the ROK Army into the free world's bastion in the Far East.

WHILE THE COMMUNIST OFFENSIVE was grinding to a halt against the Pusan Perimeter, KMAG's plans for the organization and training of a new Korean Army were placed in operation. Replacement Training Centers, with Korean cadres and American officers and enlisted men as advisers, were established. Branch and service training schools, most of which suspended operations during the Communist onslaught, were re-activated.

The major effort, however, toward a fully-trained, operationally-competent Korean Army began shortly after the 1951 Communist spring offensive when General James A. Van Fleet, then Eighth Army Commander, instructed Brig. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan, KMAG Chief, to institute and administer a vast program in the tradition of U. S. military training.

This program has now reached its fruition, with 20 combat-ready divisions in five corps, backed by 10 reserve divisions and ample supporting installations, providing the Republic of Korea with one of the world's strongest deterrents to Communist aggression.

THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA ARMY, with President Syngman Rhee as Commander-in-Chief and General Hengkun Lee, a battle-tested division and corps commander, as Chief of Staff, functions with three major commands.

First and foremost of these major commands is the First ROK Army (FROKA) which, like all of the ROKA, is under the operational control of the Eighth U. S. Army. FROKA is the field army; its troops, organized in five corps along the Demilitarized Zone, protect the Republic from any future aggression.

The second major command is the recently activated Second ROK Army (SROKA). It forms the ROK Zone of the Interior and has as its mission the responsibility of providing the ROK Army with all logistical support, as well as common-item support to the other ROK military services. Factories, repair and rebuild shops, hospitals and other facilities necessary for an Army to function properly have been taken over and are operated by SROKA. SROKA also trains, equips and administers the ten reserve divisions.

Not only has SROKA taken over this tremendous task and achieved excellent results but, with the help of KMAG advisers, it has also established, enlarged and equipped its reserve division training centers and conducted field problems in training and logistics. One of these, LOKEK-56, was the first logistical exercise ever conducted by the ROK Army.

THE THIRD MAJOR COMMAND is the Korean Army Training Command (KATC). KATC is responsible for the training, and for the development of tactics and techniques, weapons and equipment, and instructional materials, for the ROK Army. It furnishes well-trained basic replacements for the divisions as well as the necessary cadres for its own schools and training centers. KATC controls 14 service schools patterned after those in the United States, an Aviation Training Center, a WAC Training Center, and probably the largest Replacement Training Center in the free world.

In addition, there are two other outstanding schools which do not come under KATC supervision. The Korean Military Academy, modeled after the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, is located near Seoul and has recently graduated its second class of four-year students. The Command and General Staff College, patterned after the C&GSC at Fort Leavenworth, is located in Chinhae, near Pusan, and trains outstanding ROK officers for high-level commands. While KMA is patterned after West Point, its KMAG advisers are not necessarily West Point graduates.

The ROK Army has also opened a Logistical School which will soon graduate its fourth class. This school emphasizes supply management and is developing high-level staff officers trained as logisticians. It is supervised by the G-4, ROKA headquarters.

KMAG has its headquarters adjacent to ROK Army headquarters. KMAG's network of detachments span Korea from the Demilitarized Zone on the north to the port city of Pusan, 230 miles to the south. These detachments are stationed with every major element of the ROK Army, including armies and KATC, corps, divisions, the Replacement Training Center, depots, ports and schools.

THROUGHOUT ITS OPERATIONS, KMAG employs the "counterpart" system. This method of operation assures, within the capabilities and availability of KMAG personnel, that key ROKA officers at army, corps, division and similar levels have at their side a KMAG adviser. A competent adviser is thus available on a continuing basis to provide guidance and assistance to his Korean opposite number.

Benefit from the KMAG effort has accrued not only to ROKA, but to the U. S. Army as well. The very real professional training gained by KMAG personnel in their observation, study and analysis of military training, logistics, administration and planning of the ROK Army at command levels usually much higher than those normally available to U. S. Army personnel, is without parallel in the American Army.

Concurrent with their normal advisory duties, KMAG personnel serve as ambassadors of democracy. This is more than merely exhibiting themselves as clean-shaven, neatly-dressed, polite individuals during their duty and off-duty time. Rather, it is in the day-to-day performance of their duties that they impart the wisdom and truth of the democratic ideals which have made our nation so great.

Today, as yesterday, KMAG advisers stand side by side with their Korean brothers-in-arms at every level of command, and they know from first-hand knowledge and effort that the ROK Army is one of the world's best.

RAdm. Hannegan Will Assign Pilots to Desk Jobs

RAdm. Edward A. Hannegan, USN, Director, Aviation Personnel Division, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, will shift to duties as Deputy Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel for Personnel Control, Bureau of Naval Personnel, this month.

In his new post, Admiral Hannegan will be concerned primarily with the assignment of Naval Aviators. An earlier JOURNAL story (23 Feb. 1957, page one), told of Navy plans to place larger numbers of senior pilots in administrative billets.

The reason behind the move requiring

Naval Aviators to serve in "policy generating billets" is that top-ranking pilots soon will outnumber "blackshoe" officers in corresponding ranks.

To offset the growing imbalance, Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, directed VAdm. William V. Davis, USN, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Air, to relinquish his aviation officer distribution function to VAdm. James L. Holloway, USN, Chief of Naval Personnel.

Admiral Hannegan's chief function will be to slot senior pilots—two-star, four and three-stripe officers—into desk jobs.

House Halts Military Land Acquisitions

The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation which prevents the Armed Forces from acquiring more than 5,000 acres of land at any one time without a special act of Congress.

The restriction embraces public lands of the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, the outer Continental Shelf lands and Federal lands and waters off the coast of Alaska and Hawaii.

The proposal (HR 217) also requires all military reservations and facilities to abide by the hunting, fishing and trapping laws of the State or Territory in which the installation is located.

Gen. Cecil Will Lead AF Management Report

Brig. Gen. C. W. Cecil, USAF, Director of Management Analysis, and three of his Division Chiefs, (Col. Mercer P. Davis, Col. C. D. B. Smith, and Col. Robert L. Kirby) will serve as a panel to present and discuss the subject of "Reporting to Top Management in the Air Force" at the Financial Management Round Table on 23 April 1957.

The Round Table is sponsored jointly by the Society for Advancement of Management, the American Society for Public Administration, and the Federal Government Accountants Association. The meeting will be at the General Accounting Office auditorium, 441 G Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be open to the public. The agenda for the conference follows:

Objectives of Management Analysis—General Cecil.

Mission and Weapon Systems Summary—Colonel Davis.

Support of a Weapon System—Colonel Smith.

Application of Electronic Computers to Analysis—Colonel Kirby.

Summary—General Cecil.

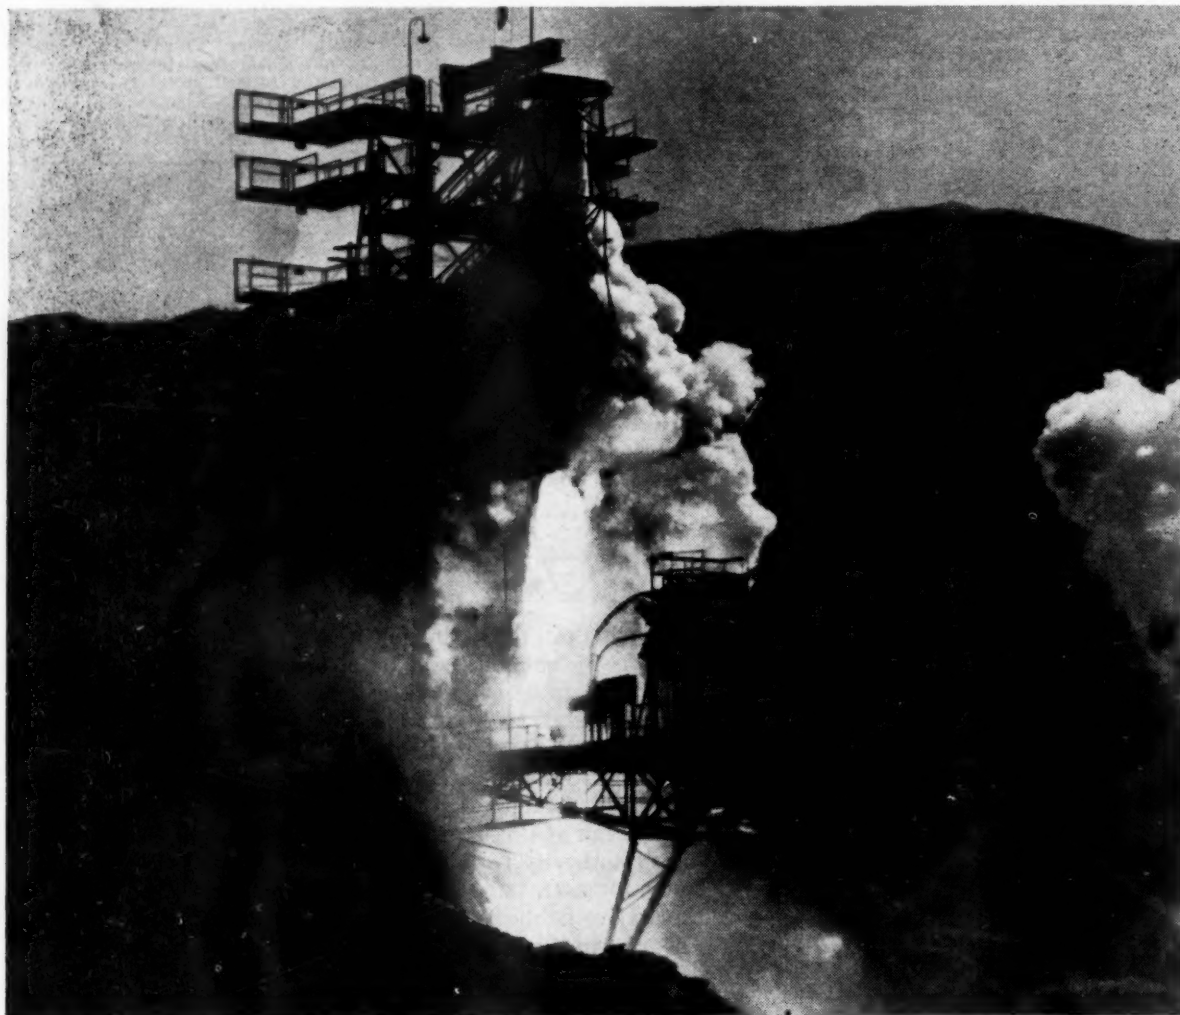

Pentagon Soon To Have 'Round The World Voice

The Pentagon soon will be equipped with a powerful new short wave transmitter which can beam messages to any place in the world under all conditions.

The transmitter, called the World Spanner, was designed for use as part of the Army's communication network by the Army Signal Engineering Laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and by Continental Electronics, Inc., of Tex. The set is almost 50 times more effective than the loudest commercial broadcasting station.

The power of the transmitter rests with its single sideband design. This is an electronic technique which concentrates the power of a transmitter's signal. Conventional transmitters broadcast three separate signals. The single sideband circuits filter out two of the signals, the carrier wave and the one sideband, and funnels all the power into the remaining sideband.

The World Spanner will have a power of 300,000 watts. With the new single sideband refinements and a new beam antenna now under development, effective power will reach 24 million watts.

Powerhouse of America's major missile programs

Every day at ROCKETDYNE's Propulsion Field Laboratory, deep in California's Santa Susana Mountains near Los Angeles, rocket engines developing millions of jet horsepower are tuned and tested for their ultimate job—to power America's long-range missiles.

These high-thrust engines—developing more propulsive power than anything before produced—are moving on schedule from ROCKETDYNE for delivery to the Armed Forces. By fall of this year other high-thrust production engines will flow from another plant now being activated by ROCKETDYNE in Neosho, Missouri.

As today's engines are being delivered, ROCKETDYNE engineers are constantly pushing ahead—evolving dramatic boosts in power outputs and engine performance.

This kind of tomorrow-minded engineering—conducted in a private enterprise system—is a keystone in the defense structure of the free world.
